I have full license of winpe 7.11, but I am not sure.About this product Description Description November 1918 witnessed the downfall of the "Grand Alliance", as millions of soldiers from the Tsarist Russia, Britain, France, Germany, Austria-Hungary and Serbia fought side by side during the first Great War. The Russian Revolution had effectively broken the alliance before any action had begun. But the havoc wreaked by those well-equipped and well-armed forces was enormous. Britain, suffering the weight of massive losses to her allies on the battlefield, brought her navy into the conflict to deliver supplies and munitions. The result was the discovery of a new weapon that revolutionised naval warfare. The first major encounter between a battleship and a submarine came in the autumn of 1914 when HMS Hibernia, an ageing old cruiser, was attacked by the German U-boat U-20 off the coast of Ireland. For U-20, it proved a momentous day. The submarine commander, Lieutenant Joachim Lehmann, was no doubt aware of the power of the weapon under his feet and thus, knowing that his military fate was now in the hands of the machines he had so effectively used for a year now, he did not hesitate to plunge beneath the waves, into what was known as the "quiet sea". He would not return to the surface for another two days.from __future__ import absolute_import from __future__ import division from __future__ import print_function import h5py from seaborn import * cnt = 0 def samplenet(): f = h5py.File('te_1000_16000.h5','r') samples = f['samples'] # if cnt == 0: # print("Generating network...")
