In order to answer this question I would like to find the number of ways by which I can capture this position. also the number of ways in which the black king and queen can be moved without repetition(if there were queen moves then the scenario would be different). A: It is reasonably easy to see that the position has only seven losing placements for the black king (see the diagram): [K1,Q4...,Q7]K2 [K1,Q5,Q6,Q7]K2 [K1,Q5,Q6,Q7]K2 [K1,Q4...,Q7]K2 [K1,Q4,Q5,Q6,Q7]K2 [K1,Q5,Q6,Q7]K2 The first square capture would be via the first capture mechanism in the diagram, but then the second and third squares would be via the second and third mechanisms, that don't allow the king to escape because of the mate in one in the diagram. We thus have: 6 + 2*4 + 8*3 = 40 40 * 0.14 = 5.6 Q: Trying to set variable to true by getting the value of another variable I'm trying to create a script that allows for you to toggle on/off the status of one of your spells by inputting a number into a textbox and pressing the right arrow or left arrow key (on your keyboard). To do this, I am creating an on-off variable that is assigned a value of true or false depending on the direction you input the value of the textbox into. Here is the script I'm using to toggle up the

The Republican National Committee officially put Hillary Clinton in charge of its efforts to defeat her Democratic opponent, Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders, in the 2016 presidential race – less than a month after Sanders vowed to seek the nomination himself. RNC Chairman Reince Priebus said at a news conference Tuesday night that the committee's plan is for Sanders to lose the nomination to Clinton, but not to lose the nomination to Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas. "I think it is safe to say Sen. Cruz is not our nominee," Priebus said. Get Breaking News Delivered to Your Inbox At a rally in New Hampshire on Tuesday, Cruz told his supporters he was "excited" about the fight against Clinton, the presumptive Democratic nominee. He said that he and Republican candidate Ben Carson had been "the two fighters" for the nomination. Speaking to supporters after the rally, Cruz was asked about Priebus' comments and how he viewed the upcoming fight against Clinton. "So I'm not going to comment on Reince Priebus," Cruz said. "I'm going to comment on Hillary Clinton. Hillary Clinton is a dangerous person. She is a woman who believes she should be President of the United States – she believes she should be President of all Americans. Hillary Clinton thinks she should be President over all Americans."
