Obituary PESHAWAR: A teacher of Pak-Turk Institute, Ishar Khan (69), killed his wife, Aisha and his eight grandchildren when he saw them doing. AP Photo Umar Batal killed his wife, four children and mother when he saw them in bed. A senior police officer on Monday said the latest murder in Kurram Agency was a case of honour killing. Police official Eng. Shah Gul said that after killing his wife, Hameed, a resident of Pheelk district, and four of his children Umar Batal killed his mother Naila Bibi. The bodies of the deceased were recovered from a house in a village of Sajhala in Pheelk district. Shah Gul added that investigations revealed that Naila Bibi was the main object of the honour killing. "He had been jealous of his brother's marriage," he said, adding that Naila Bibi was the child of his paternal aunt who divorced the son of her late husband after he became frustrated over her marrying again. "After the divorce, Naila and her stepfather went to the house of her brother and his wife," he said, adding that to protect their family Naila Bibi had been sent to her paternal uncle's house in Sajhala. "Naila Bibi's stepfather then killed the mother and four of the children of Naila Bibi and her husband," he said. "Two of the children of Naila Bibi survived by themselves." Additional Interior Secretary Noorul Haq Achakzai on Monday said the government has already taken action against officials involved in the killing of Aisha. He added that the investigation was being carried out. Newspaper reports said that Mr Achakzai has directed officials to take action against those involved. He said that people who were involved in the killing have been asked to appear in court. Mr Achakzai directed officials to take action against those involved in the
